
Push Out and Pull In

spoken by Kalindi on October 21, 2009

The way that the strategy that has been set down by God for the way this Mission is going to work is that we are going to – as a Mission as a whole – we’re going to push really hard and just go and get so many things done in leaps – just like Ashrams, and Seminars, and ideas, and start this thing, and start that thing, and start that thing, and we’re just going. And it’s like we’re just running and getting so much done, and all of a sudden we just hit against like, “Oh we can’t do any more, and it’s so heavy, and it’s spilling over, and it’s like there’s no supervisors, and what’s going on? And how are we going to do it?”

And then at that point you have to pull everything in, practically stop everything except what needs to go, and then we pull in and we regroup.

And we do that as a worldwide Center, where that means the top teams – Board of Directors, Business Team, Forward Thinking – from all the different Centers pull in and put the Mission on an a just an easy program and time for them to pull in and get things debriefed and straightened up and like that. And we pull in, and we regroup, and we rethink, and we get everything ready and everybody ready, and everybody healthy, and everything ready to go again and then we go.

And that’s the way it’s going to be. And I was told that by Gourasana during my awakening in 1989.

So that’s how it’s going to be. It’s like we’re just gangbusters and just going in ecstasy and just taking advantage of the fact that, “We’re going? Okay, let’s go.” And everybody just charge ahead. But you can’t just go, go. The material world won’t even allow it that you just keep going. The bodies will collapse.

So we just pull in and do what we just did. Modify everything, relook at everything, start some new programs, get rid of some old programs, get everybody okay, and then plan a date when we're going to start, and then we go. So that's the way it's always going to be.

And sometimes it'll be like that individually. So don't think anything is wrong. That's how it is going to be. That's how we have to work with the illusion also. The illusion just won't tolerate it any other way.
