About “True Self” Dressing

You will want to emanate beauty in what you wear and how you dress. Clothing is the material thing closest to the True Self. Clothes are important because the True Selves want to come into color and beauty. In this way the world will see the beauty of your being.

So you will put on clothes that will lift your spirits into your connection. It is not about the ego wanting to walk around with all these things and look good.

You are not trying to be fashionable in the way you dress, or look good in a material way – or trying to dress or change your body in order to make it appealing, like a model in a magazine. Quite the opposite: it is about total acceptance of your body, gratitude for that which is your container in this life. Your body is your very personal walking temple or altar.

It is about opening and trusting, accepting this vehicle and starting to use it to manifest the love, the joy, the freedom, the wildness, the innocence, the uniqueness, the sensuality and the divinity of who you really are – the True Self.

Your clothes can either help you to express all that you really are, or they can express who you are not. You can reinforce your beauty in the way you dress, or you can reinforce the illusion as laziness, unworthiness, deadness, shame.

This means that you can very practically allow the presence and the energy of love, beauty, and God to start MANIFESTING through you, in way you dress and present yourself.

In Kalindi Mart you will be able to find the right clothes that express your beauty, as well as jewelry, scarves and everything else you need – more than in your wildest dreams.

Isn't that wonderful and challenging? Or better said, wonderfully challenging?
Keep trusting in yourself and in Kalindi!
